

JUNE 2019 £4.99

THE WORLD OF INTERIORS

GRUNGE TO GLAM How Bella Freud turned a junk-pile backyard into a 1970s pad

INSIDE: 68-PAGE ART AND ANTIQUES SPECIAL

network

Sophia Salaman chooses the best jewellery worldwide

Chaumet will unveil its rarest pieces, some of which are being displayed for the first time, at an exhibition of historical gems from grand families and royalty. Chaumet in Majesty: Jewels of Sovereigns since 1780 runs at the Grimaldi Forum, 10 Avenue Princesse Grace, 98000 Monaco (00 377 99 99 20 00; grimaldiforum.com, 12 July-28 Aug).

Founded more than 50 years ago, Moussaieff is synonymous with the finest, rarest jewels. Each piece is handcrafted to resemble a work of art, and the company has a reputation for sourcing the most dazzling stones, including pink and blue diamonds, sapphires and emeralds. Moussaieff, 172 New Bond St, London W1 (020 7290 1536; moussaieff-jewellers.com).

The camellia was Coco Chanel's favourite flower, and she regularly wore a white one with a black dress. Taking its inspiration from this classic bloom, Chanel's '1.5' high-jewellery collection features 50 pieces, 23 of which are transformable and can be worn in a number of different ways. Chanel, 173 New Bond St, London W1 (020 7499 0005; chanel.com).

This spring, Van Cleef & Arpels presents six new creations in its 'Frivole' collection: a ring, two bracelets, a pendant, a necklace and a pair of earrings. Made of yellow gold, the pieces feature delicate flowers with pavé-set diamonds that really catch the light. Van Cleef & Arpels, 9 New Bond St, London W1 (020 7493 0400; vancleefarpels.com).

William & Son offers a custom-made jewellery service for special pieces and suites of jewellery. Each item is made in the company's east London workshops, which have been associated with the ancestors of its founder, William Aspree, for more than 150 years. William & Son, 34-36 Bruton St, London W1 (020 7493 8385; williamandson.com) ■